

training
missionaries
to get
the job
done

requires
your assistance

Students on missionary training scholarships work out their own room and board . . . but the classroom training costs Michigan Christian approximately $912 a year for each student.

Will YOU share a portion of this cost?

The enclosed card and postage-free reply envelope are for your convenience in responding to this need.

MICHIGAN CHRISTIAN COLLEGE
Rochester, Michigan

THE KEEBLE-PALMER
FUND

Nelson David Isonguyo, a 1968 MCC graduate, was selected by the Foundation for Christian Education of Nashville, Tenn., as the outstanding foreign missionary student in U.S. christian colleges. In his presentation, Pres. Lucien Palmer expressed confidence that Nelson would be well equipped through his missionary training to furnish strong leadership in the church of his native Nigeria.

Many of those shown at right are now back in their homeland getting God's message across more effectively because unnatural language and social barriers do not exist. This is exciting!

an exciting concept in getting GOD'S message across . . .

The KEEBLE-PALMER FUND is designed to provide training for students of all nationalities in the field of Bible and Missions. This aid comes in the form of tuition scholarships for qualifying students and in the expansion of the various services provided by the Bible Department of the college.

Michigan Christian College, over the years, has proved the effectiveness of its training program for missionaries. Alumni of this program can be found in just about every corner of the world including many areas of the United States where the church is not prominently known.

Support of the KEEBLE-PALMER FUND is an exciting, and practical means of doing effective mission work. Its effectiveness has been proved by the work now being done by former missionary scholarship students. Its excitement is a personal thing experienced by those who give toward its support.

