

Oakland Community College Degree Trends Report (1989-90 through 1998-99) Major Findings

The Degree Trends Report is developed by the Office of Institutional Research based on data compiled from official college records and reports submitted to the Michigan Department of Career Development for the IPEDS (Integrated Post-Secondary Education Data System) Annual Degrees Conferred Report. The Degree Trends report examines trends of OCC degrees, based on program.

This report depicts the five and ten year trends in associate degrees and certificates awarded, trends in the changing rate of degrees conferred college-wide and by program, and the top five degree granting programs. The percentage of change reported in many instances must be viewed cautiously. A number of programs have a relatively small number of graduates year to year. Incremental changes in these programs appear as high percentage changes. In other programs the structure of course offerings affects how frequently certificates or degrees may be awarded.

Highlights from this year's report include:

- ◆ Total awards (degrees and certificates) increased 41% this year over awards in 1997-98. In the past ten years the highest number of total awards was 2,319 during 1991-92, and the lowest number of total awards was 1,552 during 1997-98.
- ◆ Through the past ten years the number of certificates awarded initially shifted upward to numbers greater than 100 over the course of three years, shifted downward to numbers less than 100 over the course of the next four years, and ended in 1998-99 with the ten-year high of 161 certificates awarded.
- ◆ The lowest number of associates degrees awarded in the past ten years was 1,483 in 1997-98. The highest number of associates degrees awarded in this time period was 2,191 in 1991-92. This year the number of degrees awarded is 2,208.
- ◆ The top five degree granting programs over the past ten years are Liberal Arts, General Studies, Business Administration, Nursing, and Mental Health/Social Work.
